Dyspepsia fakes the lives of many people miserable

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stemach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are Distress some of the more common After symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, pernistent attention, and a remedy like Hoof's Barapharilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symphosacche their effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the thred mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia, I had but little appetite, and what I did eat the stressed me, or did me there it in the distressed me, or did me there it in the distressed me, or did me there is the distressed me, or did me the distressed me, or d burn after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shuit up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsa-filla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

City Health Officer Garrison said to an INTELLIGENCER reporter last night that he was glad to see the article in yeaster day's INTELLIGENCER calling attention to the inexcusably filthy condition of the city lockup. The statements made, he said, were all notoriously true, and he had insisted on correcting the evil. Ventilation is a positive necessity. No prisoner ought to be confined in such air. It is almost bad enough to breed a pestilence.

Death of a Prominent Citizen.

Andrew Kinmons died yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock at his home in Elm Grove. The deceased was one of the oldest residents in the county. He was very much esteemed by all who knew him and the news of his death will be read with sorrow by a large number of friends. Mr. Kinmons caught a severe cold afew days since and a case of pneumonia resulted that caused his death. He leaves a growing family, the Kinmons Brothers, well known farmers and business men, being his sons.

The Executive Board of Division No , of the Potters' National Union, held their quarterly meeting Wednesday night at East Liverpool. Delegates were their quarterly meeting Wednesday night at East Liverpool. Delegates were present from Steubenville, Wheeling, New Brighton, Wellaville and other pottery points. President J. A. O'Neil was in attendance from Trenton, as well as several other labor leaders. A close air of secrecy was observed by the delegates, and all efforts to secure information as to their actions were unsuccessful. The East Liverpool Crisis, however, learned that the Steubenville attike was discussed, and it was decided to-bring the entire force of the order to bear in favor of the striking men. Twenty thousand dollars of a reserve fund will be used to pay the wages of the men, the same as if they were at work at their old places. It was also decided that the men should not accept work at other points where they had been offered situations, but remain at Steubenville.

President O'Neil, in reply to the query as to how the cause of the men was progressing at Steubenville, end of the decident of the fight there already won, as the firm had already exhausted every resource to run the works, and had failed.
